

How to measure your ring size

The best and most accurate way to measure a ring size, in case you don't know it, is by visiting a local jeweler. Jewelers use a set of graduated rings and other specialized tools to determine ring size.

However, if this is not possible we suggest the following ways to measure the ring size at home. Choose the one you prefer!

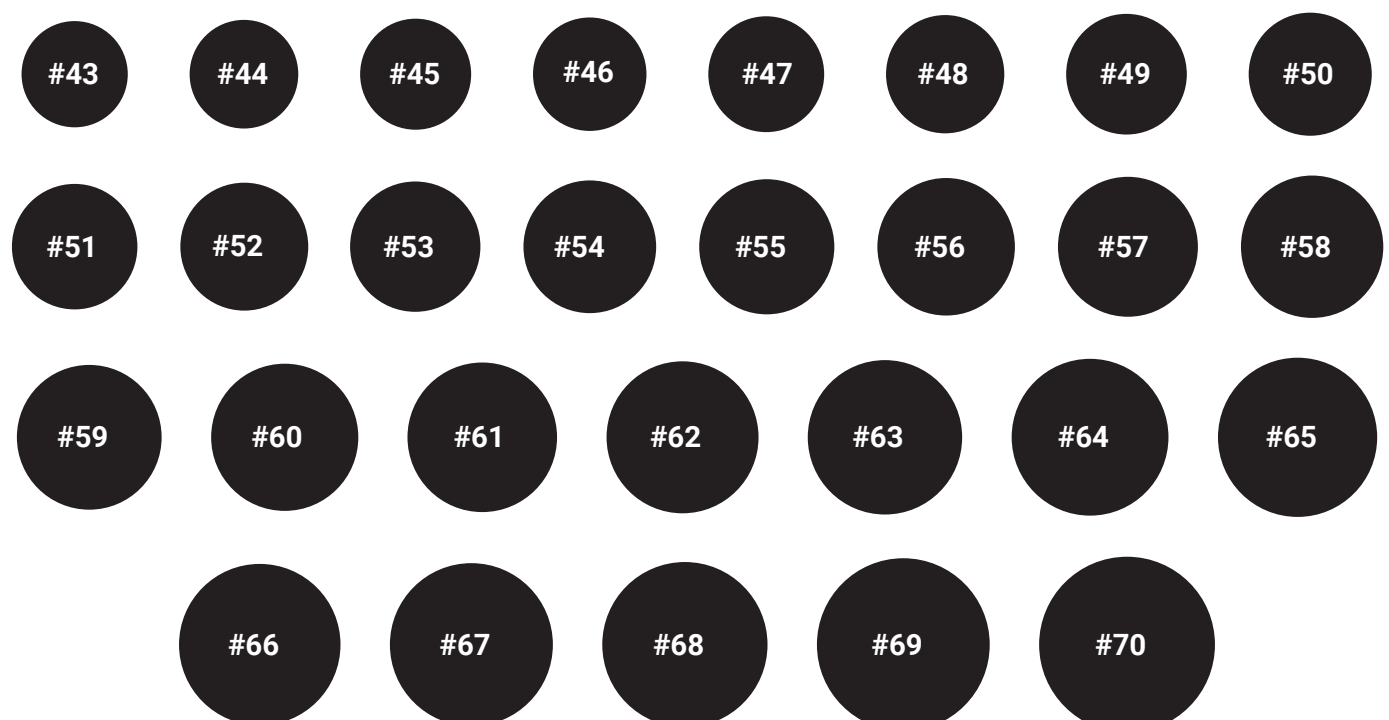

1st Option

Print this page in size A4 without changing the scale (make sure you don't shrink or expand the page). Then measure the following distance with a ruler to confirm that it is exactly 5cm.

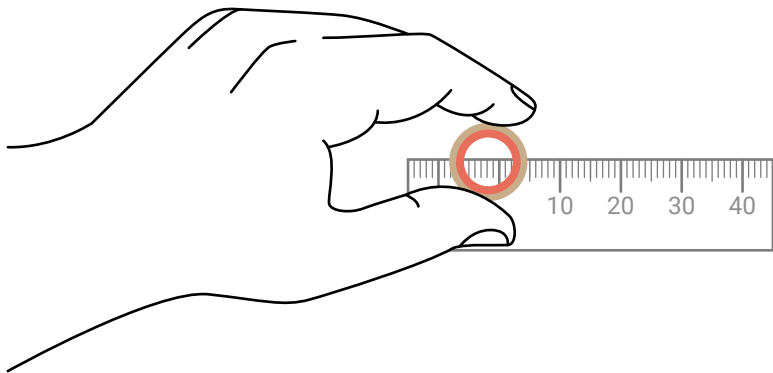

Take a ring from your collection that fits you perfectly and place it on top of the following ring size circles to determine the right size.

As you need to find the inside size of the ring, make sure that the inner diameter of your ring touches the edge of the circle.

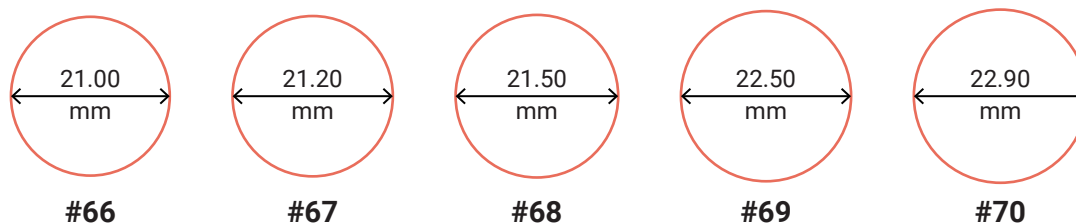

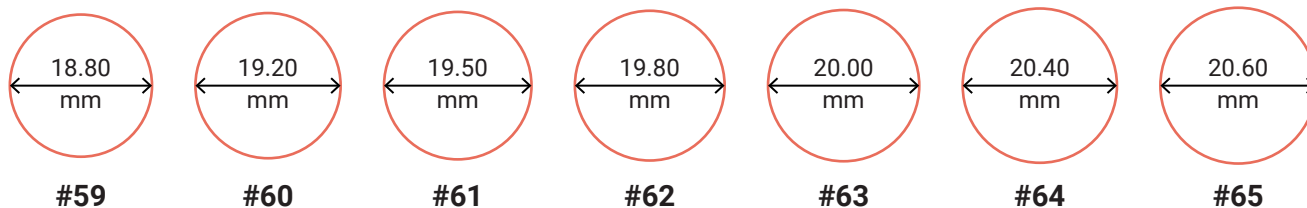

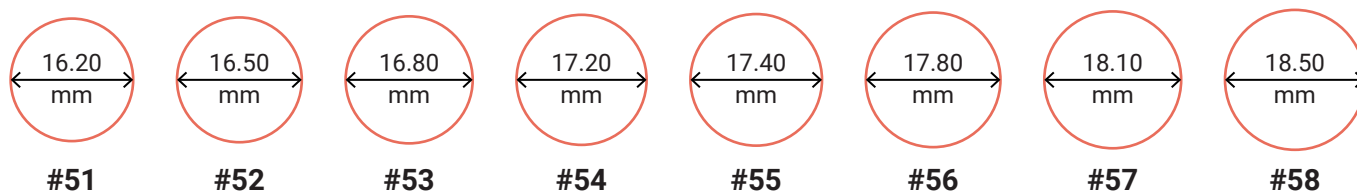

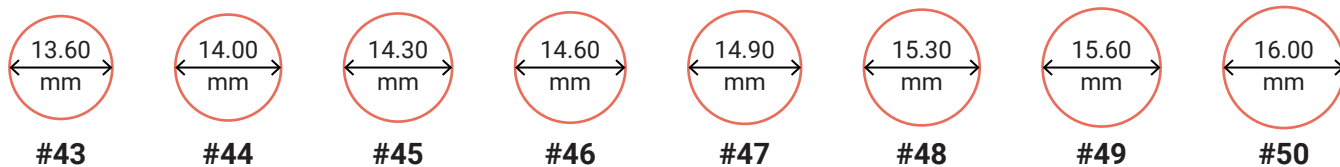

2nd Option

Find a ring from your collection that fits you perfectly. Then, take a ruler and measure the inner diameter of the ring. Make sure to measure the distance across the middle inside.

Find the right ring size by using the size guide below.

If you decide to use the first option to determine the ring size you need to print out the instructions in size A4. Make sure you don't shrink or expand the page while doing so.*

If you decide to use the second option to determine the ring size you don't have to print out the instructions. Use the guide to convert the cm into a numerical size.*

Make sure that the ring you use is round and not distorted.*
